

Abstract

Sub AI
An infrared photodetector includes at least two quantum well layers with depths adjusted to provide different peak spectral responses. Adjustment of the depths of the quantum well layers permits the photodetector array to receive and process two or more different infrared colors so as to provide additional infrared information.

09666301.092100
007260" T0E99960